High-efficiency InGaN-based green light-emitting diodes (LEDs) with high brightness are required for future high-resolution displays and lighting products. Conventional green LEDs based on InGaN multiple quantum wells (MQWs) greatly suffer from the low efficiency owing to the poor material quality and quantum-confined Stark effect.

Nanomaterials development and their related processes can improve the performance based on the energy storage existing system. Current study discuss fruitful approaches and outline a roadmap for using green nanomaterials for advancement in energy storage devise.

In this case, the application of green nanomaterials is indeed suitable for its sustainable solutions. Pioneer in the era of scientific verification. Application of nanotechnology for the treatment of water and purification are the requirement of the research and development plan.

In summary, the energy storage types covered in this section are presented in Fig. 10. Note that other categorizations of energy storage types have also been used such as electrical energy storage vs thermal energy storage, and chemical vs mechanical energy storage types, including pumped hydro, flywheel and compressed air energy storage.

This is seasonal thermal energy storage. Also, can be referred to as interseasonal thermal energy storage. This type of energy storage stores heat or cold over a long period. When this stores the energy, we can use it when we need it. Application of Seasonal Thermal Energy Storage. Application of Seasonal Thermal Energy Storage systems are Pumped-storage hydroelectricity is a type of gravity storage, since the water is released from a higher elevation to produce energy. Flywheel energy storage To avoid energy losses, the wheels are kept in a frictionless vacuum by a magnetic field, allowing the spinning to be managed in a way that creates electricity when required.

Exploring high-efficiency broadband green phosphors that match the eye's natural perception to produce light-emitting diodes (LEDs) with vivid color reproduction and exceptional saturated colors is highly desired.
