Maryland's Renewable Energy Future. 50% of Maryland's energy will come from renewable sources by 2030 in accordance with a law passed in 2019. The state will join seven others with green energy production goals of 50% or higher. Several Maryland utilities have additional initiatives to push energy-tech forward and focus on a sustainable future.

Understanding Energy Suppliers in Maryland vs. Utility Companies. Utilities deliver natural gas and electricity to your home. In Maryland, this means your utility -- which many customers refer to as light and power companies -- owns the power lines and gas pipelines which deliver energy to you to serve your home.
