Is it possible that these could be related to the service message. It seems like a strange coincidence that after driving it for a year, the day I get some maintenance on it that this pops up. EDIT 3: The "Power Steering Maintenance" light also just came on. Does this have anything to do with the problem?

If you are getting the "Power System Service Urgent," it is your vehicle's way of telling you that the power system of your Volvo is below the recommended threshold. Typically, the fault is from your alternator or battery, and you would need to replace or repair the damaged parts.

It's not too much oil warming. That warning message says oil service required. You can try to remove the battery terminal for a while to see if the warning disappear however I'd visit a garage for a quick diagnostic as this can be anything now. Does the car drive as usual? No limp mode or reduced power?
